

New Website from the National Center for Family Literacy (NCFL)

Now introducing Wonderopolis™. NCFL's latest contribution to family literacy, Wonderopolis is a place where parents nurture a brighter world for their children through discovery, creativity, learning, and imagination. NCFL knows that parents see their children not only for who they are, but for all they can become. Wonderopolis helps families reach their ultimate destination – together. Wonderopolis offers families a Wonder of the Day. Each day. Every day. Educational success comes from a little learning every day. And now, NCFL helps bring learning into the home on a daily basis in bite-size bits that fit into everyday life. Each Wonder of the Day sparks parents to ignite their child's curiosity and love of learning.

- Have you ever wondered why flamingos are pink?
- Have you ever wondered what ice cream headaches are really all about?
- Have you ever wondered why bees buzz?

Join their new movement. Visit Wonderopolis.org. It's easy. It's fun. And the learning is big!

Wonderopolis is supported by a grant from Verizon Foundation. It's the latest website in the Verizon Thinkfinity suite – a robust educational project composed of 11 of the nation's leading educational organizations.
