History is Relevant: The Israeli New History and its Legacy

This talk will first revisit the emergence of the Israeli New History as an interpretation of 1948, and the post-Zionist debate that followed this new interpretation. It will then assess the impact of the New History on Israel and Palestine since its emergence. The talk will conclude with an update on the present historiographical orientations in historical research on Israel and Palestine.