Supreme Court Review and Preview: a discussion with Jonathan Adler J.D., Johan Verheij Memorial Professor of Law, and Director, Center for Business Law and Regulation Jonathan L. Entin J.D., David L. Brennan Professor of Law emeritus

Universities are not the only organizations which begin their years as the leaves are turning. That is also when the Supreme Court begins its new term. Therefore the "Friday Lunch" begins each Fall semester with a review of the Court's past term and preview of the next.

There are some interesting cases to review from the past term – such as the Court's decision not to address the merits of Wisconsin's redistricting in Gill v. Whitford. What the Court does next year depends mostly on what cases are coming up. Yet we also must wonder how Judge Brett Kavanaugh, if he is confirmed to replace Justice Anthony Kennedy, will change the Court. His nomination has been met with great expectations – hopeful on the right and fearful on the left – of what a Kennedy-to-Kavanaugh switch could mean. Will this October be the beginning of a revolution in U.S. jurisprudence? In what areas of the law would the effects be greatest? Nobody can be sure, but Professors Adler and Entin will help us understand the possible stakes.

The Friday Public Affairs Discussion Lunch is an opportunity for students, faculty, staff, emeriti and other members of our communities to learn and question each other about public policy issues at the international, national, and local levels. Faculty and other speakers share their research and experience to get beyond the headlines and repetition in the mass media, and the wild rumors of the internet. Lunch is brown bag, but cookies and some beverages are provided by the Center for Policy Studies of the College of Arts and Sciences.
