Call for abstracts

Deadline: January 13, 2020

For the 5th time, Centre for German and European Studies of St. Petersburg State University and Bielefeld University is pleased to announce Networks in the Global World (NetGloW), the largest regular East-European conference on network analysis.

Since 2012, the goal of the NetGloW biannual conference series is to bring together networks researchers from around the globe, to unite the efforts of different scientific disciplines in response to the key challenges faced by network studies today, and to exchange diverse research results – thus enabling analysis of global social processes as well as theoretical and methodological advancements. The conference is open to discussions on various types of networks studied by social scientists - social, cultural, semantic, material, organizational, economical, political and other.

In 2020, the conference theme will revolve around understanding of network structures in their social contexts.

Confirmed keynote and invited speakers:
- David Krackhardt, Carnegie Mellon University
- John Padgett, University of Chicago
- Nick Crossley, University of Manchester
- Peng Wang, Swinburne University of Technology
- Jan Fuhse, Humboldt University Berlin
- Iina Hellsten, University of Amsterdam
- Camille Roth, Humboldt University Berlin
- Frederic Godart, INSEAD
- Elisa Bellotti, University of Manchester
- Julia Brennecke, University of Liverpool
- Christoph Stadtfeld, ETH Zürich

The conference invites papers to a set of regular and organized sessions including, but not limited to the following network-analytical foci (for more information visit: ngw.spbu.ru/programme):
- Quantitative Methods of Network Analysis
- Qualitative and Mixed Methods of Network Analysis
- Networks and Culture
- Networks in Politics, International Relations, and Economy
- Networks in Science, Education, and the Arts
- Urban, Environmental, and Socio-Technical Networks
- Online Networks

Abstracts of up to 2000 characters (with spaces) should be submitted online before January 13th 2020 at http://ngw.spbu.ru/submission.

A selection of conference papers will be published as a ‘NetGloW 2020’ volume of the Springer’s ‘Lecture Notes in Networks and Systems’ indexed in Scopus.

The conference will also feature a selection of workshops.

Fees: standard: 70 EUR, MA and PhD students: 30 EUR. Participation in a workshop does not involve an additional fee. The organizers will cover accommodation of MA and PhD students who submitted the best abstracts.

Note that citizens of most of the European countries can get an electronic Visa to St. Petersburg for up to 8 days online.
