Dear members,

Welcome to the 123rd issue of ENCATC News! Enjoy our first issue of 2019 to learn what ENCATC has in store for you and your institution, opportunities to internationalize your networks, present and publish your work, and innovate your teaching and training offers.

This issue includes our 2019 calendar of 13 events taking place in 7 cities in Brussels, (BE), Dijon (FR), Lucca (IT), Madison, WI (USA), Rabat (MO), Taipei (TW), Zagreb (HR). There will be something for everyone interested in expanding their knowledge and sharing experiences in cultural management and policy. From among the diverse offer of activities, there are 2 your institution will not want to miss!

The first is our flagship event from 2-5 October in Dijon for the 2019 ENCATC Congress "Diversity and sustainability at work. Policies and practices from culture and education". As the only Congress on Cultural Management and Policy, this rich offer encompasses the Annual Members’ Forum, the Annual Conference, the Annual Education and Research Session, the Project Poster Exhibition, 2 Award Ceremonies, the Young and Emerging Researchers’ Forum, the presentation of our Book series, cultural visits and excursions, and for the first time, in parallel the ENCATC Base Camp on Governance.

The second is a once in a lifetime trip to Morocco for the 2019 ENCATC International Study Tour. Join us to discover this country’s cultural wonders. Create new synergies with leading cultural and educational institutions from Casablanca, Tangier and Marrakech during VIP meetings. Satisfy your thirst for knowledge on cultural policy and cultural diplomacy in the MED region!

In the Members’ Corner of this issue, we are proud to showcase achievements of 6 members stories made possible thanks to their ENCATC membership, involving 12 countries. An incredible inspiration for all the network to continue taking advantage to collaborate with peers in more than 40 countries.

In 2019, we continue our strong engagement to reduce the impact of our organisation on the planet as well as to lead the change in this direction by publishing success stories from sustainable organisations thanks to our wonderful cooperation with Julie’s Bicycle. In this issue, you will discover more about creative climate trends and policy.

Since the beginning of the year, ENCATC is involved in 3 new projects: Heritage Pro; EU Heritage; and TRACES. To follow their first activities, the office has joined in this first trimester the partners of their Consortium in Lecce, Bilbao, and Matera. What a wonderful opportunity for ENCATC to learn new practices to share with our members!

This issue is also full of opportunities and important calls to promote your work internationally. If you have to choose only few don’t miss our call for the European Journal on Cultural Management and Policy and the one for the ENCATC Research Award!!!

Finally, take a break to read with attention all the incredible activities initiated in 2019 by our members and stakeholders in the broad field of culture. Such dynamism in the sector is extremely important to progress in overcoming current challenges of the culture and education sector.

Looking ahead in 2019, I hope you will join me, ENCATC members, and our loyal followers for another fantastic year of being open to new ideas, collaborations, great successes, and innovative contributions to our field for the benefit of all.

Yours sincerely,

GiannaLia Cogliandro Beyens

16 January in Brussels, Belgium: ENCATC Secretary General, GiannaLia Cogliandro Beyens met with Paul Dujardin, CEO-Artistic Director of BOZAR Centre for Fine Arts, a member of ENCATC, to discuss synergies for upcoming ENCATC activities in 2019 like the Capacity Building Days and Youth in Action Day (4-9 May in Brussels) for students studying cultural management and policy at ENCATC member institutions.

28 February in Bari, Italy: GiannaLia Cogliandro Beyens, ENCATC Secretary General met with the Creative EuropeDesk MEDIA to learn about its activities and share what ENCATC is working on. She was joined by members from Turkey and The Netherlands along with representation from the EC DG for Education, Youth, Sport and Culture.

19 March in Brussels, Belgium: To discuss the 2019 ENCATC International Study Tour partnership, ENCATC Secretary General GiannaLia Cogliandro Beyens met with the World Leisure Organisation. Building on the very positive impact of the previous edition in the Emirates, we expect again this year to attract several members of this organisation to join us in Morocco. Cristina Ortega from Spain. 22 March 2019 in Brussels, Belgium: GiannaLia Cogliandro Beyens, ENCATC Secretary General, attended the “Be Creative, Call the Bank” Conference. It was a unique gathering to learn about new financing opportunities and programmes specifically designed to support European entrepreneurs from the cultural and creative sector.

26-27 March 2019 in Paris, France: ENCATC, in its status of observer of the Reflection Group “Heritage and the EU”, was in Paris on 26 and 27 March to discuss European perspectives in favour of heritage and prospective exchanges between states, professionals, and civil society. Represented by ENCATC Secretary General, GiannaLia Cogliandro Beyens, she was joined by heritage expert and ENCATC member, Claire Giraud-Labalte. This was a moment to report on the network’s Cultural Heritage achievements in 2018 as well as to learn from Member States and stakeholders about their future Cultural Heritage activities.

22 March 2019 in Brussels, Belgium: On the occasion of the Med Culture a closing conference on “Building on a cultural partnership with the south neighborhood”, Med Culture representative Fanny Bouquerel and ENCATC Secretary General, GiannaLia Cogliandro Beyens met with ENCATC member Yelena Kharitonova, Vivian van Saaze, Assistant Professor at the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences from Maastricht University, and Martje Gulikers, Co-organiser of “TEFAF and the City” at Maastricht Marketing.

13 February in Brussels, Belgium: On the occasion of the Med Culture a closing conference on “Building on a cultural partnership with the south neighborhood”, Med Culture representative Fanny Bouquerel and ENCATC Secretary General, GiannaLia Cogliandro Beyens announced the partnership between the two organisations for the 2019 ENCATC International Study Tour to Rabat, Morocco (11-14 June).
Providing students a European dimension to boost their CVs

In its commitment to offering valuable experience to help students and emerging professionals get a footing in today’s competitive labour market, ENCATC’s successful Marie-Claire Ricome Internship Programme has welcomed 70 trainees from 27 countries since 2001.

ENCATC recognises the importance for today’s youth to gain professional experience and that adding a European dimension to their CVs is a valuable asset.

To kick-off the year, ENCATC has been delighted to welcome in our premises three new trainees from Italy, the United States and Belgium:

Danilo Politi is from Italy and recently completed his MA studies in Cultural Management at the University of Ferrara, a member of ENCATC. He joined the ENCATC team in January to have a learning experience in ENCATC’s Communications Department and to lead the ENCATC Praxis website, a project for students by students needing career advancement opportunities in the cultural sector.

Grace Ratliff is from North Carolina in the United States where she studies Communications at Furman University. ENCATC is proud to continue in 2019 its partnership with the Educational Programmes Abroad (EPA) to host American students interested in European cultural policy and cultural management. Having arrived at the end of January, she is helping ENCATC implement collaboration tools for ENCATC members.

Morgane Detry is in her final year of a Translation in International European Affairs Master’s programme at the UC Louvain in Belgium. Since 2005, ENCATC has successfully partnered with the programme to welcome a translation trainee. Morgane is helping ENCATC to translate into French its 2018 Annual Activity Report, 25 Years publication (2017), in addition to brochure and communication materials.

Modernising Cultural and Creative Industries within the EU

On 6 February in Brussels, ENCATC Vice-President Ana Gaio was invited to share her expertise at the symposium “Modernising Cultural and Creative Industries within the EU: Discussing the New European Agenda for Culture”.

Cultural and Creative Sectors occupy a significant place in today’s European economy, contributing to innovation, investment, digital modernisation, and cultural tourism. The Cultural and Creative Industries (CCIs) generate around €509 billion per year, representing 5.3% of the EU’s total GDP and employ 12 million full-time jobs, which constitutes 7.5% of the EU’s employment and the third largest employer sector in the EU (European Commission, 2018). More than the economic value added to the EU’s GDP, these sectors promote Europe’s culture within and beyond EU borders. In a political context characterised by the questioning of the European project, cultural and creative sectors have the potential to strengthen European identities, cultural diversity and values, favour critical thinking, and build bridges between art, culture, business, and technology to bring citizens closer.

In the last years, the EU has developed various projects in the framework of the 2015-18 Work Plan for Culture and the 2020 Horizon programmes to finance and support CCIs. However, market fragmentation, insufficient access to finance and uncertainties in salaries conditions continue to undermine the cultural participation and development. In response to the Council’s invitation to do more in the cultural sector, in May 2018 the European Commission adopted a proposal for the New European Agenda for Culture. The New Agenda aims to harness the power of culture and cultural diversity for: social cohesion; to bolster the common European identity; support jobs and growth in cultural and creative sectors; and strengthen international cultural relations.

Organised by the Public Policy Exchange, this event evaluated recent initiatives and policy developments in the field of CCIs from the EU to tackle the emerging challenges. Participants exchanged views, perspectives and good practices on the possible strategies to overcome obstacles, and debated on the role of the Cultural and Creative Industries in national politics, education, international communication, and social inclusion.

48th ENCATC Cultural Happy Hour explores stories of company archives and museums

To celebrate the start of a new year, on 30 January in Brussels ENCATC partnered with Museimpresa for an exceptional evening to discover the film “Newmuseum(s). Stories of company archives and museums”.

100 Cultural Happy Hour guests attended the screening at the European Parliament of this documentary film directed by Francesca Molteni. It was a powerful and visual reminder of the commitment of company archives to preserve their heritage and showcasing museums dedicated to telling their stories to benefit the development of the Italian and European cultural identity. It prompted reflections around questions like: What is the role of company archives and museums today? How are these places, where the industrial culture is collected and transmitted, changing both in Italy and in Europe?

To deepen reflections, a discussion panel shared their perspectives. Invited speakers included: Silvia Costa, MEP, S&D CULT Coordinator; Patrizia Toia, MEP, ITRE Vice-Chair, Michele Quaroni, Deputy Permanent Representative of Italy to the EU; Walter Zampieri, Head of Unit for Cultural Policy DG EAC European Commission; Renzo Iorio, President of Cultural and Development Steering Committee Confindustria; Alberto Meomartini, President of Museimpresa; and Francesca Molteni, the film’s Director.

This event was promoted by Museimpresa (Corporate Archives and Museums Italian Association). It was organised under the aegis of the Italian Ministry of Cultural Heritage and Activities.

BRAFA, one of Europe’s largest art fairs, welcomes ENCATC’s Cultural Happy Hour

On 4 February in Brussels, ENCATC partnered once again with the BRAFA Art Fair to welcome 57 of its Cultural Happy Hour guests! The event began with a welcome and introduction of the 2019 Cultural Happy Hour calendar by Giannalia Cogliandro Beyens, ENCATC’s Secretary General. Next, Beatrix Bourdon, BRAFA Managing Director presented the art fair and its highlights for the 2019 edition which hosted 133 galleries and art dealers from 16 countries. BRAFA has a rich offer with a panoply of art collections which cover 20 specialities, including classical archaeology, tribal art, pre-Colombian art, Asian art, jewellery, silverware, coins, furniture and art objects dating from the Middle Ages to today, old and modern paintings, contemporary art and design, sculpture, ceramics, contemporary glass and porcelain, carpets and textiles, drawings, original cartoons, engravings, rare books, photography, and more!

This year’s guests of honour were internationally renowned duo Gilbert & George. Having started out as performance artists, they became famous for their large-scale photo pieces. These are often in very bright colours with superimposed black gridlines evoking the windows of yesteryear. The images are contemporary and immediately recognisable, with most placing portraits of both artists in the picture. Although their art draws inspiration from (their) daily life, the vision they offer is in turns metaphysical, mystical, or polemical, but always with a touch of humour and conveying a message.

After a convivial networking moment, guests were treated to guided visits that included artworks such as Frida Kahlo’s "Life and Pain in Plaster Corset with a Hammer and Sickle". This piece tells a fascinating, multi-faceted story, one of a painful life lived undefeated, a life lost, and a chapter of history. Painted by the Mexican artist, it is a three-dimensional piece that alludes to the broken state of her body, while offering social commentary on events, both historical and personal.

Guests were also treated to seeing the large work by Belgian artist Paul Delvaux (1897-1994), "Le Balcon" of 1948. The painting is fresh to the market, having been in an Asian collection since the 1980s.

Evaluation methodologies to assess the impact of Arts Fair at local level and beyond

On 15 March in Maastricht, 16 academics, researchers, cultural practitioners, artists, consultants, and students from Belgium, Italy, Luxembourg, and The Netherlands gathered for a preparatory meeting co-organised with the support of ENCATC member, Yelena Kharitonova, in the frame of the ENCATC Working Group on Evaluation of International and European Transnational Cultural Projects.

Building on the success and exchanges of previous meetings in Brussels, Potsdam, Manchester, and Antwerp, this gathering had two goals. First, taking place at the occasion of The European Fine Art Fair (TEFAF), it was an ideal backdrop to exchange on existing evaluation methodologies used by arts fairs, cities, and regions to better understand the impact at the city level of the art fairs in their own territories. The group’s reflections were stimulated thanks to the keynote given by ENCATC member Yesim Tonga Uriarte, Post-Doctoral Research Fellow at the IMT School for Advanced Studies Lucca on "Current methodological approach for the assessment of Arts Fair impact".

The second goal was to prepare with the participants the draft agenda of the Conference that will be organised in the framework of the ENCATC Evaluation Group in Maastricht next March 2020.

Thanks to the partnerships with TEFAF, MECC Maastricht, and the Maastricht Centre for Arts and Culture, Conservation and Heritage (MACCH), participants benefited from special access to TEFAF’s Preview Day which included an Arts Symposium on the Chinese Art Market as well as a guided tour to meet with gallery owners and collectors from around the world.

The Group will meet next for a workshop on education and evaluation on 29 May in Zagreb, Croatia.
CAPACITY BUILDING

Do you wish to add a hands-on European dimension to your education offer?
ENCATC organises European Study Tours for its members!

This year to add a hands-on European dimension to the education it provides students, the University of Salento, a member of the network, “hired” ENCATC to organise a bespoke 3-day European Study Tour in Brussels for its students studying cultural management.

From 26-28 March 2019, 40 students benefited from this specially designed tour aimed at increasing students’ knowledge of European institutions, the role these institutions have in culture and education policy, and successful EU funded projects:

The group met with representatives of the European Commission, the Council of Europe, the European Travel Commission, the Puglia Region, Tourism, Cultural and Creative Industries, and the Toscana Region, Brussels Office.

There were also specific interventions on the topics of: PHOTONICS, A Strategic enabler connecting regional and European Digitalisation actions; Regional policy and cultural tourism; EU policies on cultural and sustainable tourism; and ATLANTIKWALL Europe: A practical example of an EU funded project related to cultural tourism.

There was also a series of study visits organised to major players in Brussels’ vibrant cultural scene: Kanal - Centre Pompidou and meeting with Yves Goldstein, its Chief of Mission; BOZAR, Centre for Fine Arts and talk with by Magdaléna Lišková, Institutional Advisor; the House of European History; LaVallée with Lieza Dessein, Project Manager, SMart cooperative; and the Parlamentarium.

How do I have ENCATC organise a Study Tour for my students?

ENCATC members should write to Giannalia Cogliandro Beyens, ENCATC Secretary General to inquire about pricing and conditions for this additional services available to members only. Not yet a member of ENCATC? Learn about our many fantastic membership benefits and apply today!
ENCATC’s new PRAXIS website for students is live!

On 22 January, ENCATC celebrated the official launch of its PRAXIS website to Full ENCATC members and their students studying cultural management and policy in over 35 countries in Europe and beyond!

ENCATC strongly encourages students and young/early career professionals to have work experience abroad. This is an opportunity for tomorrow’s leaders to get a jump start on building their CVs, put into practice their knowledge learned through education and training, and develop and hone their skills in another cultural environment.

Created in 2008 as a monthly e-magazine, over the course of 10 years and 72 publications through PRAXIS ENCATC shared 1,129 internship opportunities in 66 countries, 307 training offers, 30 job opportunities, and 29 interviews.

Building on this strong foundation, the next chapter is the ENCATC PRAXIS website. Students can check internship and training offers, read our interview archives, learn how they can be more engaged citizens in the European project, and register for student-only ENCATC events.

Full ENCATC members will have received an email with instructions for how their students can sign up. Help us to grow and have your students be part of a growing community that has already over 80 students from all over the world. For questions, please write to: trainee@encatc.org

Need some audio-visual materials for the classroom? Check out ENCATC’s newly refreshed YouTube channel!

In March 2019, ENCATC revealed a fresh reorganisation of its YouTube channel. Launched for the first time in 2011, the channel has so far been a valuable source for teachers and trainers to have additional materials for their classrooms with more than 15,000 views to date.

As the channel has grown in content, ENCATC has worked to re-categorise the content, making it easier to find topics within cultural management and policy.

The Educational playlist brings you a series of education resources in the form of short talks by international experts on different key topics in the field of cultural management and policy.

ENCATC in Action is a playlist focusing on the network’s four working strands: influence, network, education, and research. They are developed through a wide range of events, activities, interviews and recorded speeches from leaders in our field sharing their knowledge and expertise.

The third playlist is dedicated to Transnational projects. Learn about ENCATC’s involvement in cultural projects on a variety of topics from training for cultural managers, museum audiences, digital exhibitions, artistic mobility and more!

UPCOMING EVENTS

#ENCATC2019

27th ENCATC Congress
Diversity and sustainability at work
Policies and practices from culture and education
2-5 October 2019
Dijon, France

David Throsby
Our keynote is the Distinguished Professor of Economics at Macquarie University in Sydney

30+ world-renowned education experts leading discussions and panels

70 papers from educators and researchers from around the globe

150+ Connect with leaders in our field coming from over all over the world

3 celebrations to recognise excellence and commitment in our field

50+ young and emerging researchers

The 2019 ENCATC Congress is your opportunity to thoroughly explore the practical meanings of diversity in the cultural and creative sector, investigate how its different connotations are implemented in practice, and how they are contributing to the sustainability discourse in the field.

Thanks to contributions from leading experts, the Congress will look at the theme from different perspectives, such as: diversity of cultural and artistic production; diversity of artists/inclusion of different categories of artists; diversity of business models; diversity of audiences; diversity in creative spaces such as co-working and incubators places; diversity of governance and management models among others.

From across the globe will come academics, trainers and researchers from the cultural management and policy educational fields with cross-disciplinary interests to mingle with professionals, policy makers, and artists and thus to bridge the knowledge gap, promote research esteem and the evolution of pedagogy.
DAVID THROSBY, ONE OF THE WORLD’S MOST RENOWNED EXPERTS IN OUR FIELD

ENCATC is honoured that David Throsby, Distinguished Professor of Economics at Macquarie University in Sydney, Australia will be the keynote speaker on 3 October in Dijon, France at the 2019 ENCATC Congress.

David Throsby is internationally known for his research and many publications on the economics of art and culture. Throsby holds Bachelor and Master of Science degrees from the University of Sydney and a PhD in Economics from the London School of Economics.

Use your ENCATC Project Marketplace to find partners for transnational projects
The Project Marketplace is intended to help connect ENCATC members who are interested in collaborating on transnational projects.

Via an online form, members can express their interest in searching for partners for existing proposals they are working on, share that they are interested to become partners, or that they are looking for members to exchange about potential project ideas.

The information collected is available in the Members’ Area of the ENCATC website.
Arts and culture are not only responding to environmental challenges but are trailblazing the way forward: creating new narratives, testing ideas, developing interdisciplinary collaborations and reimagining what’s possible. Environmental sustainability is being ingrained within the whole cultural economy - from investment, strategy and operations, to creative programming, partnerships and public engagement.

For over 11 years, Julie’s Bicycle has been tracking this movement of change within arts and culture. Drawing from this experience, we have identified Seven Creative Climate Trends - key communities of environment centred practice that are leveraging significant cultural value. They are: Artwork, Activism, Organisational Leadership, Design and Innovation, Collaboration, Path-finding, and Policy Changing. This configuration of trends aims to demonstrate the full breadth and diversity of creative responses to the environment, contextualizing them as a whole movement, networked and moving in concert. Julie’s Bicycle is inviting all artists and cultural practitioners inspired by - and working in alignment with - our natural environment to situate themselves within these seven trends and tell their stories of leadership on our new interactive map. This map is open to all and has been designed to make visible this growing movement of change.

1 Based on results for an average improvement in energy efficiency for one whole year and for one organisation.

This is the final article in the “Seven Creative Climate Trends” series. Launched in March 2018, the series is the result of a strategic cooperation with Julie’s Bicycle, a charity bridging the gap between environmental sustainability and the creative sector. Thanks to this cooperation, ENCATC is able to offer to educational and cultural operators in Europe and beyond a series of inspiring stories that should change our practices and allow us to transform our own offices in a responsible environmental organisation.
Creative Climate Trends, creating the frameworks, investments, accountability, authority and pathways to drive progress and track change. A strong example of the effectiveness and impact of policy for supporting environmental change has been Julie’s Bicycle’s partnership with Arts Council England to inspire environmental action across the arts and cultural sector.

“Policy interventions can enable and accelerate positive change on a large scale. Arts Council England’s decision to introduce environmental requirements to its funding agreements has translated five years later into significant environment, financial, organisations and creative benefits, jump-starting a more sustainable cultural economy.”

Francis Runacres, Director of Enterprise and Innovation, Arts Council England

This collaboration led to a pioneering policy intervention in 2012, when the Arts Council became the first cultural body to make environmental reporting and policy part of funding agreements for National Portfolio organisations. By 2017/18, collectively 600+ organisations have reduced carbon emissions by 35%, energy consumption by 23%, made savings of £16.5 million (Read the 2017/19 Annual Report).

Organisations are experiencing benefits beyond reductions – environmental practice and carbon literacy are being linked to improvements in other organizational priorities, including team morale and strategy decision making.

Organisations are contributing to a new creative ecology. The above trends drive demand for – and generate new skills and knowledge that support – clean technologies, sustainable goods and services, greener waste solutions and the emergent circular economy. A quarter of the National Portfolio Organisations are now on a green energy tariff.

The Arts Council England Programme with Julie’s Bicycle is in a new 4-year phase (2018-2022) with now over 800 organisations across all art forms and continues to build literacy, skills and capacity in the sector so organisations feel confident to act on climate change and reduce their environmental impacts. This is achieved through training, tools, networking, resources and case studies. There are two new strands of activity in this phase.

First, the Spotlight Programme working with 30 large arts organisations to design environmental impact reduction objectives, which has been made a requirement of their funding agreements. The Spotlight Programme is focusing on building energy use which accounts for a significant proportion of the carbon footprint for these organisations. The Spotlight Programme is following the approach of the Science-Based Target Initiative (SBTi) to set carbon reduction targets in line with what climate science says needs to be done to keep global temperatures below 2°C as committed to in the Paris Agreement.

Second, the Accelerator Programme is a new strand of this work, which aims to foster enterprise, innovation, future thinking and creative perspectives on climate and the environment in arts and cultural organisations. Between 2018 to 2022, Julie’s Bicycle will recruit two cohorts of up to ten organisations and consortiums to take part in the programme. The programme will be looking at everything from touring models and audience engagement to design and supply chains, income generation and governance.

The Arts Council England approach of pairing environmental requirements in funding agreements with arts organisations and providing the Portfolio with the knowledge, tools, peer sharing and collaboration through its partnership with Julie’s Bicycle is unlocking environmental action within the arts and culture to reduce its impact. This is most importantly enabling the sector to actively engage with the climate change issue with society at large so that society can rapidly transform to limit the impacts of climate change.

For this ENCATC in Contact Interview we talked with Davide De Nicolò, Senior Project Manager at Tecnopolis Science and Technology Park, a new member of ENCATC. We wanted to learn more about why they joined the network, their expectations and contributions, and interesting projects they’re working on.

What are your reasons to become an ENCATC member?

Tecnopolis has been a scientific and technological park and business incubator for over 30 years. Currently we are involved in cross-border cooperation projects and European projects on the theme of CCIs.

In particular, we are involved in the TRACES project (an Interreg Greece-Italy) which is led by the University of Salento, another member of ENCATC. We are also involved in the NEST project (an Interreg Italy-Albania-Montenegro) led by the Ministry of Finance and Economy of Albania; the ATLAS project (an Interreg Italy-Croatia) led by Friuli Innovazione, among other projects on other topics. Regarding the CCIs sector, we are members of the Puglia Creative Cluster and we also participated with a paper on this specific topic at the 2015 Ifkad conference.

Tecnopolis has many collaborations with research organisations and business incubators on the theme of CCIs. All this led us to consider joining ENCATC and we believe that our membership is of great importance to strengthen our knowledge and skills, hoping to be able to contribute to the growth of the network.

What are your expectations concerning the ENCATC network?

Tecnopolis is a member of APSTI, the association of Italian science and technology parks and EBN, the European BIC network. For some years now we have been working on the theme of cultural and creative enterprises and we are doing it both with formal adherence to the Puglia Creativa Cluster, and with specific actions such as the organisation of seminars, workshops, and training actions. All this should be added to our work as an incubator, where every day we accompany micro and small businesses in their growth. In this period, in particular, we are also working on the creation of a co-working space dedicated to CCIs.

We consider the sharing of ideas and actions to be fundamental and our experience leads us to consider that this is possible thanks to the networks that work on specific topics.

At ENCATC we expect to expand our knowledge and skills in the CCIs sector. Furthermore, we expect to be constantly informed about the training models and methods proposed by the other members. Finally we expect to be involved in actions and projects hoping to be able to contribute to the growth of the network.

What will be your contribution to the network’s mission?

Tecnopolis is a public company fully owned by the University of Bari. The science park welcomes university spinoffs but also indigenous knowledge-based start-ups as well as other “established” companies looking to diversify their activities.

In the last few decades however, there has been an increased interest in the Universities’ role in the economy and thus there has been encouragement and financial support from governments locally and nationally to develop more rapid linkages between universities and industry.

Business incubation services form a key part of the science park and contribute to its position in the region as a catalyst for entrepreneurship activities in the development of industry clusters. A large portfolio of services provided in-house and externally is available to client firms who can also contribute to a number of EU-funded initiatives such as the international projects mentioned above. With our membership we want to put at the service of ENCATC and its members our experience and our knowledge to grow together and to respond to the needs expressed by the territory.

What is your role in the TRACES project that also involves ENCATC and fellow member the University of Salento?

In the TRACES project Tecnopolis is a project partner. The objectives of TRACES are, in short, to create and activate a personalised, cross-border online environment to support the incubation of cultural and creative SMEs and creative entrepreneurship by developing: 1) a tailored incubation programme; 2) a strategic cross-border network of local incubation service providers; 3) three tools to facilitate and spread the incubation process and spill over effects; 4) a pilot trial, which provides: incubation services for 50 creative business ideas; evaluation of the pilot project and development guidelines; recommendations and incentive measures for policy makers.

We contributed to the writing of the project together with the other partners (Puglia Creativa, HMA, Chamber of Commerce of Achaia, Banca Etica Foundation, and ENCATC). We are responsible for organising 2 knowledge transfer workshops; an international conference which was held last 28 February in Bari; the development of the incubation programme, and the protocol that must be signed between the partnership and the consultants of the companies that will work in the Local Ateliers (small incubators / creative accelerators identified by the TRACES project). We are also responsible for the creative contest in Puglia and we participate in all the activities of the project.

Do you have any other projects you are working on that are interesting for ENCATC members and followers?

For us this is a very prolific moment in the project sector, as we are engaged in 6 international projects and we are waiting to know the result of two other projects in other measures. We are also ready to present other proposals in the next calls being defined.

We are currently engaged in two projects on the Interreg Greece-Italy programme. One is TRACES, of which we have already spoken and another is INVESTMENT on the theme of tourism-transport. We are also a partner of NEST, an Italy-Albania-Montenegro project on tourism, as well as ATLAS, a project funded by the Interreg Italy Croatia programme, again on the theme of tourism and CCIs. We are committed as partners of the AYEN project, based on funds from the Government of Norway and the theme is very particular as this project deals with the burning issue of the Neets. The countries involved are, besides Italy, Greece, Romania, Bulgaria, Croatia, and Norway. A few weeks ago the BiC4SMEs project started, an Erasmus + that sees us involved as a partner where we are responsible for a business training activity. The partnership is interesting because we work with colleagues from Ireland, Spain, Slovenia and Belgium.

Our new Educational Resources playlist gathers in one place interviews and short talks by international experts on different key topics in the field of cultural management and policy.
On 6 February in Ostersund, Sweden, ENCATC member Claire Giraud-Labalte, President Pôle des acteurs du patrimoine en Pays de la Loire from France was invited to share her expertise at the 2019 Spring Conference “Cultural Heritage - ownership and community building” (6-7 February) organised by the Nordic Centre of Heritage Learning and Creativity and hosted at the Jamtli open air museum, a member of ENCATC.

The theme of this year’s conference looked at the potential of cultural heritage in processes that are aimed at strengthening social cohesion and active citizenship. A central question was how heritage institutions can create a space where society can contribute and communities actively own their heritage?

For her presentation "Building heritage communities in a European and regional perspective", Claire Giraud-Labalte approached the subject of the conference from two angles. First she provided an overview of the European Cultural Heritage Strategy for the 21st Century (as formulated by the Council of Europe 2017) that was inspired by the Faro Convention. Secondly, she guided conference participants through a closer look at the Pôle des acteurs du patrimoine en Pays de la Loire, a cooperation network of cultural heritage stakeholders at a regional level.

Young Creative Generations Conference

On 26 March in Brussels, ENCATC member Damien Helly joined fellow member Carmen Croitoru to present at the “Young Creative Generations” Conference, an event hosted by the Romanian Presidency of the Council of the European Union. Their collaboration to share expertise from ENCATC is thanks to an open call shared among the membership.

The main discussion topics at the conference were ways to bring the young European population to the table, to create an environment where young voices are heard, and to unite youth to create a strong sense of a European identity.

Carmen Croitoru, from The National Institute for Cultural Research and Training (NIRCT), spoke on "Urban myths about cultural and creative sectors. What does or does not want the young creative generation”. She first emphasised the importance of engaging young creatives to become an active part of the Cultural and Creative Sectors. Croitoru also debunked two urban myths. The first that there is a presumption that youth do not engage in CCSs due to the lack of financial resources, reasons of bureaucracy, and fear of failure. The second myth is that younger generations are not interested in cultural participation because they prefer the Internet.

Damien Helly of DH Creative Partnerships, entitled his presentation "Ways forward to foster a stronger sense of European belonging among young people through education and culture.” He addressed the rising issue of European belonging by focusing on: Why we are here?; Current trends for young creatives in Europe; and Policy agendas and toolboxes. Helly ended his discussion by presenting six different creative strategies, including the idea of acting local and thinking European, supporting peer-to-peer sharing, and investing in the resilience of social fabric and the production of the commons.

Lastly, another ENCATC member was present, Melat Gebeyaw, project coordinator of BOZAR, spoke on "Next Generation, Please!”, a youth civic engagement programme that partners young people with an artist, political expert, and a European partner with whom they interact with digitally, BOZAR is continuing this initiative which began in 2014 and will hold this year’s exhibition on 9 May 2019 in Brussels when it also welcomes participants of ENCATC’s Capacity Building Days and Youth in Action Day (4-9 May).

NETWORKING

Germany & United Kingdom

Annual Gathering 'Democratizing the arts and the arts sector

23-25 May 2019 in Heilbronn, Germany

The Annual Gathering "Democratizing the arts and the arts sector" of the Brokering Intercultural Exchange Network will take place from 23-25 May at Heilbronn University, a member of ENCATC, in Germany.

This network, which also include ENCATC members Goldsmiths University of London (UK) has been initiated through an Arts and Humanities Research Council Research Network Grant awarded to Victoria Durrer from Queen’s University Belfast, UK and Raphaela Henze from Heilbronn University of Applied Sciences, Germany. It seeks to understand the role of arts and cultural managers as intercultural brokers in our context of globalisation, internationalisation and global migration. Intercultural understanding suggests capacity for appreciating, recognising and relating to different world viewpoints and experiences. Historical and empirical research recognises the role arts and cultural objects and expressions, like fine and performing arts and heritage, play in political, cultural and ethnic relations. Yet, little is known about the role of arts and cultural managers, their practice and education, in this process.

In fact, arts and cultural managers shape and structure intercultural exchange. They direct and administer arts and cultural projects between nations, and devise, plan and develop arts and cultural programming to attract and include growing migrant populations as audiences, participants and creators within nations. Global, cultural, post colonial, and intercultural studies show that mechanisms for fostering or hindering intercultural understanding are often based on long standing terminology, institutional structures, and habits upheld by practices and pedagogies within specific professions.

Culture, Heritage and Tourism as Factors for Sustainable Development of Small and Medium-Size Cities (SMCs): the European Perspectives

The International Conference "Culture, Heritage and Tourism as Factors for Sustainable Development of Small and Medium-Size Cities (SMCs): the European Perspectives" will be held in Blagoevgrad, Bulgaria from 29-31 May 2019.

The event is being organised by the Department of Cultural Studies at the Faculty of Arts at the South-West University and ENCATC member Svetlana Hristova, the Bulgarian Sociological Association, and Blagoevgrad Municipality and supported by the Scientific Research Fund at the Bulgarian Ministry of Education and Science.

This conference is also a prime example of ENCATC members working together as the conference’s Scientific Committee includes ENCATC members from the University of Antwerp/Antwerp Management School in Belgium, Jyvaskyla University in Finland, and the University of Arts in Belgrade in Serbia.

The conference invites researchers and experts, city leaders, cultural managers, artists and community activists to discuss how to strategize cultural resources of SMCs to creatively address the challenges and risks of the contemporary neoliberal world.

Although SMCs represent over 60 percent of European urban settlements and give shelter to the majority of the European urban population, they receive disproportionately less public attention and funding in comparison to big cities and metropolises. By highlighting good examples from different European cities and towns and identifying their key success factors, the conference will explore the potential of culture, heritage and tourism to create jobs and prevent the youth migration by transforming SMCs into hubs of cultural entrepreneurship and social integration, but mostly – into good places for life and work.

Sharing expertise from the network for the European Diploma in Cultural Project Management

In 2019 and 2020 the European Diploma on Cultural Project Management, organised and managed by ENCATC member, the Association Marcel Hicter in Belgium, will be travelling with its students to meet with ENCATC members in Iceland and Croatia.

The Diploma is a pan-European training programme arising from the will to foster cultural diversity as well as transregional and transnational cultural cooperation. As a founding member of ENCATC, Jean-Pierre Deru, the Association’s Director, takes full advantage of the expertise and knowledge that fellow members can share with its students.

From 6-14 October 2019, the group will be at Bifröst University to meet with ENCATC member, Njörður Sigurjónsson. Then in May 2020, another group will travel to Zagreb to meet with ENCATC Board member, Dea Vidović of the Kultura Nova Foundation. Both meetings will be excellent opportunities to learn about project management in different cultural and national contexts, bringing added value in the Diploma’s European spirit.

The Diploma frequently works with other ENCATC members, having in the past welcomed expertise from the University of Barcelona in Spain, The Audience Agency in the United Kingdom, and the Faculty of Drama Arts, University of Arts Belgrade, in Serbia.

The Janáček Academy of Music and Performing Arts in Brno (JAMU)

The International Festival of Theatre Schools SETKÁNÍ/ENCOUNTER 2019
2-6 April 2019 in Brno, Czech Republic

Organised by ENCATC member, the Janáček Academy of Music and Performing Arts, this festival focuses on talented young performers from art academies and universities from all around the world. It gives them the opportunity to meet their student colleagues and also meet the professionals from the international theatre field.

This festival has been taking place in Brno since 1991. Now in its 29th edition, the festival is a unique and important event of its kind not only in the Czech Republic, but also in Europe. It has a special form - the festival is organized by students of The Janáček Academy of Music and Performing Arts in Brno (JAMU). This organisation is included in their curriculum and one of the main functions of the festival is the education supervised by pedagogues.

Every year about 12 theatre academies from all over (mostly from the Europe) come to the festival and present their performances. For five days a platform is created for festival participants where they can present their work, working methods or theatre techniques and discuss them with their peers and attending theatre professionals. The Festival also has great partnerships; it is supported by The International Visegrad Fund, The Ministry of Culture, The Ministry of Education, The South Moravian Region and The Municipality of Brno.

Deadline: 19 May 2019

The Theatre Faculty of Janáček Academy of Music and Performing Arts in Brno, a member of ENCATC, is pleased to invite participants to the 9th Conference of Doctoral Studies in Theatre Practice and Theory. This year’s topic is EXPERIENCE AS A RESEARCH METHOD IN PERFORMING ARTS.

The conference will be held on 22-23 November 2019 in Brno, Czech Republic. The conference provides a platform on which different concepts of doctoral studies and research in the field of theatre practice and theory can be contrasted. The event has been attended by over one hundred doctoral students from Europe, Africa, North as well as South America and Asia who have come here to introduce their research in progress to an international audience and discuss common methodological issues.

This year we would like to examine the issue well-known to all students and young researchers in theatre and other art practice – the issue of research, its methods and especially the methods which might be traditionally perceived as “unconventional”. Whether it is challenging the limits of research by employing methods from other branches of science (neuroscience, optics, and others) or looking for the limits of presentation of one’s research by narrative or visual techniques, we are interested in topics dealing with the contemporary trends in researching theatre, radio, television and visual arts.

For Call for Proposals and further information, please see the website of the conference.

The deadline for proposals is 19 May 2019.

The 9th Nordic Conference on Cultural Policy Research (NCCPR) 2019 will be held at Bifröst University, a member of ENCATC, in Iceland from 28-30 August 2019.

The theme of the conference is cultural peripheries and it focuses on questions concerning marginal culture, definitional boundaries of cultural policy research, and fringes in cultural politics.

In that context we ask: What is peripheral to cultural policy research? What is peripheral to culture or the Nordic? What is peripheral to cultural policy?

The NCCPR 2019 is an inclusive, multidisciplinary conference where practitioners and researchers address issues regarding Nordic cultural policy, from standpoints which are relevant both to academic research and to the cultural sector. We invite papers variety of fields and practices provided that the contributions relate to Nordic cultural policy research in a broad sense.

CALL FOR PAPERS: The site for training: restoration experiences in the Fine Arts Academies

Deadline: 31 March 2019

The call for papers is open till 31st March 2019 for a study day about the following topic: “The site for training: restoration experiences in the Fine Arts Academies” The study day, organised by the Fine Arts Academy “Aldo Galli – IED Como”, a member of ENCATC, will be held on 31 May 2019 in Como at the “Sala Bianca” of the Teatro Sociale from 10:00 am to 16:30 pm.

This event aims to introducing theoretical application researches, case-histories and studies about the topic of methodology of teaching and of the process of learning of cultural, scientific, laboratory and designing disciplines which characterise the learning process of restoration.

With an interval of a few years from the birth of the five-years course of restoration and from the setting of the study plans, the study day aims to offering an overview on the various approaches to training and to educational designing in the Fine Arts Academies in relation to the complex domain of restoration, even in light of the new five-year plans and of the recent publication of the list of restorers.

The Call invites the authors to introduce their inputs for theoretical reflection and / or projects of research on strategies of teaching and learning, good practices of operation (work sites, dissertations, laboratory experiences, etc.) with a specific attention to the method of teaching and of transfer of knowledge for each learning professional process, involving where appropriate even students or alumni.

NEW HORIZON 2020 PROJECT "ILUCIDARE" DEDICATED TO CULTURAL HERITAGE-LED INNOVATION AND DIPLOMACY

ENCATC member, the International Cultural Centre (ICC) is part of a new consortium for ILUCIDARE, a three-year project supported by the Horizon 2020 Framework Programme of the European Union. The project aims to promote and leverage cultural heritage-led innovation and diplomacy thanks to an international community of practitioners in Europe and beyond.

This international research project draws on the experience of studies carried out earlier on by some of the project partners as part of Cultural Heritage Counts for Europe. The project activities (literary research, case studies, focus groups, conferences, workshops) will help garner material for two publications, Innovation Handbook and Diplomacy Toolbox, e-tutorials (MOOC), and models of effective management structures that employ heritage-led innovation and diplomacy. In addition, the project is intended to help set up an international network for sharing and promoting experience in cultural heritage innovation and diplomacy.

Apart from the ICC, other members of the international project consortium are the Katholieke Universiteit Leuven in Belgium, Europa Nostra, kEA European Affairs, the World Monuments Fund España, the Kosovo Foundation for Cultural Heritage without Borders and the University of Cuenca. The leading research partners are the ICC and KU Leuven.

"UNCOVERING CULTURAL DNA OF PLACE, AND ACTIVATING FOR LOCAL DEVELOPMENT"

8 TO 12 JULY, 2019, HIESE SMART RURAL INCUBATOR, PENELA, PORTUGAL

The Centre for Social Studies of the University of Coimbra and CREATOUR: Creative Tourism Portugal invite you to participate in an exciting new summer school, “Uncovering Cultural DNA of Place, and Activating for Local Development.”

The 5-day intensive advanced training course offers the opportunity to enhance your knowledge and to gain skills on cultural mapping techniques and culture-based development strategies.

This is a unique opportunity to learn from internationally acclaimed scholars and practitioners, including Lia Ghilardi who has led OECD workshops and is a specialist consultant in the field of culture and local development planning; Kathleen Scherf, an expert in deep mapping and place-making in small cities; and Nancy Duxbury, an international expert in cultural mapping.

The immersive course will include learning seminars featuring leading methodologies; daily tours to a variety of significant heritage sites in the region; and hands-on workshops where participants will actively engage in creating a solution for a place-related real-life local development issue.

Based in central Portugal, in the magical town of Penela — which features a picturesque castle, a series of Roman village sites with intact mosaics, and a network of caves — you will be introduced to one of the lesser known gems of Portugal.

Cultural Policy Yearbook is an international, peer reviewed publication, producing high-quality, original research published and distributed by İletişim Publishing.

The Yearbook is a bilingual and annual book published in English and in Turkish.

This issue of Istanbul Bilgi University’s Cultural Policy Yearbook 2019 will focus on the impact of forced migration and resettlement on the reproduction and dissemination of cultural heritage and artistic expressions in the 21st century.

The dossier will explore how artists, musicians, performers, authors, and craftsmen who become refugees weave networks and partnerships, create spaces and resume work in new environments. It will discuss the meaning and value attributed to arts and heritage by producers, their audiences and communities. It will document how cultural actors reorganize themselves, and mobilize the local scene and international networks.

Contributions will illustrate the diasporic nature of arts production in a globally connected arts and cultural scene. They will underline the meanings and forms given to heritage and inquire about the cultural and artistic memory at work in displacement and resettlement.

In January 2019, the Arts Management & Technology Laboratory at Carnegie Mellon University, a member of ENCATC, has just wrapped up its three-part series on blockchain! This three part series details how blockchain works, its applications for the arts, and the risks arts managers should consider before deploying a blockchain based system.

The series includes articles on the topics of: Blockchain Explained: Understanding the Technology and its Applications for the Arts, Blockchain Explained: Applications for the Arts, and Blockchain Explained: Three Questions To Ask Before Moving To A Blockchain Powered System.

After offering a primer on blockchain and discussing how it might be applied within the arts world, AMT Lab Chief Editor of Research Jenee Iyer now explores what you should consider before using blockchain within your organisation.

From 23-25 January 2019, the knowledge alliance CONNECT had its first winter school in Turin, Italy, hosted by project partner and ENCATC member, the Fitzcarraldo Foundation. Over the two days, 50 students, practitioners and partners got together to commonly reflect on the Twin Track Programme already in motion.

Connect is a European project funded by Erasmus+ that has been started in 2017. As it has been gaining momentum with more actions and results to build on, the winter school was an optimal moment to exchange ideas, tools, impressions and feedback from across Europe between all parties involved on the work being done by the project consortium.

The objective of the winter school was to have a common understanding of how to improve the CONNECT training experience, its contents, and format of the programme in the 5 countries: Poland, Spain, Italy, Denmark, and United Kingdom. By sharing the difficulties and opportunities found so far in this journey and trying to provide constructive solutions for the future actions of this project is extremely help at this stage. In order to do that creative approaches and action-learning methodologies to solve complex problems were applied.

Finally, the goals of this learning mobility was also to expand and reinforce the CONNECT community across Europe by networking and creating international connections among the participants of the different national hubs.

On 28 February in Bari, Italy, the first 1st International Conference “Towards a TTransnational Accelerator for a Cultural and Creative EcoSystem” attended by more than 50 participants from Belgium, Greece, Italy, The Netherlands, and the United States. Organised within the Traces Project, "Transnational Accelerator for cultural and creative ecosystem", funded by the Interreg VA Greece-Italy 2014-2020 Programme, the event resulted in the rich exchange of ideas to deepen, share knowledge, expectations and peculiarities of the system of cultural and creative enterprises with the aim of defining an accelerator model of the entrepreneurial realities of Apulia and of western Greece.

There are more than 13,000 creative Apulian companies in southern Italy and around 3,500 in Greece’s Achaia Region. The macro sectors in which they operate are those of the: creative industry (architecture, design, communication); cultural industry (publishing, software and video games, cinema and audio-visual, music); performing arts (dance and entertainment); and cultural heritage.

From a survey conducted on a sample of 80 companies from Apulia, mostly individual, it was found that the main problem faced by these companies, concern the under-capitalization and access to sources of financing, as well as the difficulty in demonstrating to the banking system their generated economic value due to the lack of skills related to financial planning and management.

It is from these needs, manifested by the system of cultural enterprises of the territory, that the Traces Project moves. Resulting from open call in the ENCATC network, among the invited national and international experts to the conference in Bari were ENCATC members: Professor Serhan Ada from Istanbul Bilgi University in Turkey and Yelena Kharitonova from Caravan Culture in The Netherlands. The were joined by ENCATC Secretary General, GiannaLia Cogliandro Beyens and ENCATC member, Romina Surace from the Symbola Foundation in Italy. Their knowledge and experiences contributed to questions like: Are the cultural and creative industries a driver for smart and inclusive growth? How to create ideal conditions for supporting the CCIs’ growth? What are examples of successful creative incubators?

Moving Towards an Interdisciplinary Training Scheme for the Sustainable Management and Preservation of Cultural Heritage

HERITAGE PRO is an initiative of six European partners from Germany, Spain, Austria, Sweden, and Belgium who strive to answer to the continuing call for interdisciplinary training for professionals of different disciplines towards sustainable management and preservation of cultural heritage.

Last 18 and 19 March, project partners met in Bilbao for the 2nd project meeting after the kick-off meeting in October 2018 in Mainz. It was hosted by Victoria Ateca Amestoy and Ana Isabel Velasco, representing the partner, the Spanish Association of Cultural Heritage Managers (Asociación Española de Gestores de Patrimonio Cultural [AEGPC]). For two days, partners discussed organisational issues and moved forward in the development of a multilingual training scheme for cultural heritage professionals, one of the project’s main outputs. First drafted by Swedish RESTRADE company, the training modules will be ready for testing in August this year, while the final version is expected for October.

On the 18th, partners learned from the experience of key actors implementing lifelong training programmes on Cultural Heritage in the Basque and Spanish regional and national context. Carlos Romero Moragas presented the experience of the Andalusian Institute of Historic Heritage (Instituto Andaluz de Patrimonio Histórico), while Aitzane Equilior shared the Regional Government of Biscay’s (Diputación Foral de Bizkaia) activities such as the European Heritage Days. A walking tour through Bilbao, guided by Itziar Martija from the Plaster Cast Museum of Bilbao (Museo de Reproducciones de Bilbao), helped partners understand architecture’s central role in the city’s development and identity.

Other HERITAGE PRO expected outputs are a set of multilingual guidelines for heritage managers, a multilingual training kit for easy uptake of the training scheme, and a training camp for future heritage managers as well as young craftspeople in Europe. All products will be available in open access by 2021.

ENCATC is a proud partner of HERITAGE PRO, an initiative supported by the European ERASMUS+ funding scheme 2018-2021. Within the consortium, ENCATC contributes in particular with its expertise in dissemination activities in the framework of EU projects.

Creating a new transnational curriculum for cultural heritage professionals

EU Heritage is a transnational project developed under Erasmus+ EU programme (Sector Skills Alliance for Design and Delivery of VET) coordinated by Materahub and bringing together 10 partners from 7 European countries (Italy, Spain, Greece, Germany, Malta, Romania, Belgium).

EU Heritage project partnership will work to create a new transnational curriculum for cultural heritage professionals, focused on digital skills, transferable and transversal competences, soft skills, and skills connected to “experience tourism” in the field of cultural heritage. Cultural heritage operators will become more able to seize opportunities offered by ICTs and digital technologies, more open to creativity and entrepreneurship, more able to connect with other sectors to develop new synergies and explore new business models.

Since the kick-off meeting in Matera last February, partners are now working on research aimed at identifying skills and needs in the sectors’ industries, through research activities including qualitative and quantitative surveys and reports. This research work is led by Romanian partner and ENCATC member, The National Institute for Cultural Research and Training (NIRCT).

Other project outputs include: a set of Training modules, with innovative teachings, learning methodologies and contents for the targeted heritage professionals; an Online learning platform, including Open Educational Resources and all the tools to replicate the training after the end of the project; Training module testing through face-to-face and online pilot sessions with target groups, organised in the partners’ countries, and Evaluation and Validation.

ENCATC is responsible for the project dissemination. It is now working on the strategy and material design to relay key updates and results to the project’s audience.

The project’s website will be online soon. Follow the project’s developments on Facebook @EUHeritageProject and Twitter @euherit_project.

COMMISSION/EDUCATION:
Intra-Africa Academic Mobility Scheme 2019

On 11 March, the call for proposals was launched and remains open until 12 June for the Intra-Africa Academic Mobility Scheme, a joint initiative of the African Union and the European Union. The programme’s overall objective is to enhance human capital development in Africa while strengthening intra-African collaboration as called for by Agenda 2063. The specific objectives are to: increase the employability of students; improve the quality of higher education in Africa and its relevance to Africa’s development vision; strengthen the modernisation and internationalisation of African higher education institutions; promote the development of an African higher education and research space. The partnership must be constituted of minimum four and maximum six African HEIs as partners (including the applicant) and one technical partner from the EU.

COMMISSION/EDUCATION:
European Education Area: 54 alliances vying to become the first European Universities

On 8 March, the European Commission announced the first pilot call under the European Universities Initiative has resulted in applications from 54 alliances, involving more than 300 higher education institutions from 31 European countries including all EU Member States. The institutions include comprehensive and research-based universities, universities of applied sciences, technical universities, as well as art and medical schools. €60 million have been set aside for this first pilot within the Erasmus+ programme; and the first 12 European Universities should be selected by summer 2019. A second pilot call is set to follow later this year, with a full role out of the initiative envisaged under the future Erasmus programme as from 2021. The aim is to build at least twenty European Universities by 2024 in the context of the European Education Area. Tibor Navracsics, Commissioner for Education, Culture, Youth and Sport, said: “I am delighted to see such a great interest in the new European Universities initiative, bringing together a diverse range of higher education institutions from all over Europe. This demonstrates that Europe’s universities are eager to cooperate more closely than ever before. I am convinced that this initiative, a key building block of the European Education Area, will be a real game changer for a Europe that empowers new generations to cooperate and work within European and global cultures, in different languages, and across borders, sectors and academic disciplines.”

COMMISSION/EDUCATION:
Erasmus goes digital

On 7 March, the Directorate-General of Education, Youth, Sport and Culture (DG EAC) – together with colleagues from Directorate-General for Communications Networks, Content and Technology (DG CNECT) and the European University Foundation – held “Erasmus goes Digital”, an interactive webinar to share the vision for digitalisation in the future Erasmus programme. Understanding these changes is a critical step in the roll-out of the European Student Card initiative. Representatives from over 750 institutions from 40 countries tuned in to get more information on how to prepare for the transition from paper-based to digital processes, as well as how to better manage student mobilities. They also learned that student cards can already be branded with the European Student Card hologram; this branding aims to facilitate the emergence of European student identity in the European Education Area. Digital Opportunity Traineeships are making the Erasmus+ programme even more relevant for students by facilitating traineeships abroad to boost digital skills. Perhaps most importantly, Higher Education institutions were given insight into how to maximise the impact of these amazing opportunities.

COMMISSION/ EDUCATION:

New online trainings in the fight against the illicit trafficking of cultural property

In the framework of the UNESCO-EU partnership, UNESCO has developed two free distinct on-line training courses. The first MOOC is “Engaging the European art market in the Fight against Illicit Trafficking in Cultural Property” (register from 5 to 31 March 2019). This is a dynamic, digital and interactive course established with the support of the European Union. It is aimed at a wide European audience including representatives of the European art market, institutional representatives of the Member States of the European Union, academics in law, culture and art, and the general public. The second is “E-Learning for: European Judiciary, Customs and Law Enforcement Officials” (register from 1 March 2019 to 29 February 2020).

COMMISSION/ EDUCATION:

Cross-border dialogue on Europe’s Education and Future

On 4 March, Tibor Navracsics, EU Commissioner for Education, Culture, Youth and Sport, was in Budapest to hold a Citizens’ Dialogue with around 250 participants at Budapest’s Eötvös Loránd University (ELTE) and the University of Milan in Italy. To facilitate the debate students were connected simultaneously via video link. Bringing together universities across Europe is one of the main aims of the European Education Area that this Commission started to build with Member States, and in particular, the new European Universities initiative that is currently in its pilot phase. The motto of the debate was ‘Cross-border dialogue on Europe’s Education and Future’. Participants discussed topics such as the biggest challenges facing youth today, what national governments and the EU could do better to support young people as well as the role of youth in the upcoming European Parliament elections. Commissioner for Education, Culture, Youth and Sport, Tibor Navracsics insisted that investing in education and youth remains a priority: “We proposed to double the EU Budget for the next Erasmus programme to enable even more people to have a unique European experience learning or teaching abroad.”

COMMISSION/ CULTURE & EDUCATION:

Civil Society for rEUnaissance

On 21 February in Brussels, the European Economic and Social Committee organised the “Civil Society for rEUnaissance” event. To mobilise civil society at all levels in the run-up to the European elections, leaders/representatives of civil society organisations participated in discussions with some presidents of the European institutions and of national economic and social councils along with inspirational speakers. Among the topics addressed were “Turning the next generation into European Citizens through civic education” and “Peace and culture: tools for strengthening the European project”. Overall, there was consensus that Europe needed to make a qualitative leap in communication to better bring home to ordinary citizens the real benefits the EU has meant for them and showcase its success stories. A new, more sustainable economic model taking sustainable development goals as its compass was called for. The need to develop a European cultural identity through education, to encourage Europeans to take ownership of their multiple identities and realise that they could be proud to be Europeans without betraying their local roots was prominent in discussions. The key role of European values in shaping identity and the need to hold on to these values now coming under threat was also a recurrent theme.

COMMISSION/ EDUCATION:

€251 million more for Erasmus+ in 2019

On 15 February the European Commission adopted the revised Erasmus+ Annual Work Programme for 2019, allocating an additional €251 million to the already planned €3 billion budget for the year, which will be invested in learning mobility and a number of priority projects. The revised work programme 2019 will also benefit innovative and cross-disciplinary projects such as digital learning and the teaching of science, technology, engineering, arts and maths (STEAM) as well as international activities in the field of higher education. Recognising the importance of investing in young people, the additional funding was agreed between the Council of the EU and the European Parliament in the context of their decision on the overall 2019 EU budget.

COMMISSION/ CULTURE:
EU negotiators reach a breakthrough to modernise copyright rules
On 13 February in Strasbourg, the European Parliament, the Council of the EU and the Commission found a political agreement to make the copyright rules fit for digital era in Europe and bring tangible benefits to all creative sectors, the press, researchers, educators, cultural heritage institutions, and citizens. Vice-President for the Digital Single Market Andrus Ansip said: “To finally have modern copyright rules for the whole of EU is a major achievement that was long overdue. The negotiations were difficult, but what counts in the end is that we have a fair and balanced result that is fit for a digital Europe: the freedoms and rights enjoyed by internet users today will be enhanced, our creators will be better remunerated for their work, and the internet economy will have clearer rules for operating and thriving.” The political agreement will adapt copyright rules to today’s world, where music streaming services, video-on-demand platforms, news aggregators and user-uploaded-content platforms have become the main gateways to access creative works and press articles. The agreement needs now to be confirmed by the European Parliament and the Council of the EU in the coming weeks.

COMMISSION/ CULTURE:
Music Moves Europe: Successful applicants selected for Training and Distribution calls
On 12 February, the European Commission announced it had received a total number of 130 proposals for the training and the distribution calls of the Music Moves Europe action. Applicants submitted were 79 and 51 proposals for the calls respectively. From these, the European Commission will finance 10 and 10 proposals based on the decision taken during the first week of February 2019. The beneficiaries will have one year to implement their projects. After that, the Commission will assess their results and use the lessons learnt from these pilots to develop sector-specific support in the future Creative Europe programme. Music Moves Europe (MME) is the overarching framework for the European Commission's initiatives and actions in support of the European music sector. Supported by the 2018 Preparatory Action, the Commission published two calls for proposals.

COMMISSION/ CULTURE:
Bad Ischl, Dornbirn and St. Pölten short-listed for European Capital of Culture 2024 in Austria
Bad Ischl, Dornbirn and St. Pölten have been shortlisted in the competition for the title of European Capital of Culture 2024 in Austria. A panel of independent experts made the recommendation at the end of January evaluating applications from three competing Austrian cities at the outcome of a 2-day meeting in Vienna. Once the relevant Austrian authorities confirmed the panel’s recommendation, the bidding cities will have until next autumn to complete their applications. The panel will then meet again in Vienna in November 2019 to recommend the Austrian city to become the European Capital of Culture 2024. In 2024, Austria will host the European Capital of Culture for the third time, after Graz in 2003 and Linz in 2009. Born in 1985 from an idea of the then Greek Minister of Culture, Melina Mercouri, the European Capitals of Culture have grown into one of the most ambitious cultural projects in Europe and one of the best known – and most appreciated – activities of the EU. Their objectives are to promote the diversity of cultures in Europe, to highlight the common features they share and to foster the contribution of culture to the long-term development of cities.

PARLIAMENT / EDUCATION:
European Parliament votes on European Solidarity Corps programme
On 4 February in the European Parliament in Brussels, the European Parliament’s Culture and Education committee (CULT) voted on the budget and new priorities for the 2021-2027 European Solidarity Corps programme. The Committee approved the draft report on the European Solidarity Corps by a vast majority. “This programme will be more ambitious, more visible, with bigger budget. I can say that there is news strength of the humanitarian aid in the European Solidarity corp. The programme will be more open for young people with fewer opportunities, the programme is opening also discussion with stakeholders, and it’s also offering better protection for the participants and beneficiary,” said rapporteur, Michaela Šojdrová Group of the European People’s Party (Christian Democrats), Czech Republic. The programme would include humanitarian aid activities outside the EU and should allow at least 350,000 young Europeans to support communities in need through volunteering, traineeships and job placements.

Erasmus+: new status for Serbia opens up fresh opportunities for citizens and organisations
On 5 February in Brussels, Commissioner for Education, Culture, Youth and Sport, Tibor Navracsics, and the Minister for Education, Science and Technological Development of Serbia, Mladen Šarčević, signed an agreement upgrading Serbia’s participation in the Erasmus+ programme. The signing ceremony marked the move of Serbia from a Partner to a Programme Country under Erasmus+. Ahead of the signature, Commissioner Navracsics said: “I am very pleased to welcome Serbia as a fully-fledged Erasmus+ Programme Country. This new status will allow Serbia to participate in more actions in the fields of higher education and youth, start its involvement in sport, vocational education and training as well as in actions for school and adult education staff.” By becoming an Erasmus+ Programme Country, Serbia participates in Erasmus+ on an equal footing with EU Member States. Serbia started preparations to become a Programme Country in 2016.

COMMISSION/ CULTURE & EDUCATION:
Commission launches online exhibition of outstanding historical European women in the arts and sciences
On 18 January, the European Commission launched an online series of profiles on remarkable historical women in the arts and sciences. Their stories were published in Europeana, the EU digital platform for cultural heritage. Every week until International Women’s Day in the first week of March, a new story was released, after which the “Pioneers: Trailblazing women in the arts, sciences and society” exhibition will be permanently available online on Europeana. The exhibition is part of the Commission’s strategy developed under the initiative of Commissioner Gabriel to increase women’s participation in the digital economy and to empower them to play a more active role in the digital age. It focuses on progressing in three areas: challenging gender stereotypes in the digital economy, promoting girls’ and women’s digital skills and education, and advocating for more women entrepreneurs and innovators.

COMMISSION/ CULTURE & EDUCATION:
Commission Appoints Director to its Education, Audiovisual and Culture Executive Agency
On 15 January, the European Commission has decided to appoint Mr Roberto Carlini to the position of a Director of its Education, Audiovisual and Culture Executive Agency (EACEA). Mr Carlini, an Italian national, joined the Commission from the private sector in 1993. Over the years, he gained policy and management experience in the areas of telecommunications, information technology, audit and human resources. He first became a Head of Unit in 2008. He has been a Head of Unit ‘Selection, Recruitment and End of Service’ in the Commission’s Department for Human Resources since 2010. Mr Carlini will take up his new job as of 16 February.

2019 European Capitals of Culture: Plovdiv and Matera
As of 1 January 2019, Plovdiv (Bulgaria) and Matera (Italy) hold the title of European Capital of Culture for one year. Plovdiv is the first ever Bulgarian city to be chosen as ECoC. Under the motto “Together”, 2019 will bring new opportunities to the region and international visibility for the city. The programme for Matera, under the motto “Open Future”, will have a special focus on social and cultural inclusion and collaborative innovation. European Commissioner for Education, Culture, Youth and Sport, Tibor Navracsics, said: “The programmes for Plovdiv and Matera show how these cities envisage both their own future and that of Europe, whilst celebrating their extraordinary centuries-old heritage. The European Capital of Culture initiative brings people together and highlights the role of culture in building a European identity. Both cities will help ensure a long-term impact of last year’s successful European Year of Cultural Heritage, which has demonstrated how culture can transform our cities and regions for the better. I wish Plovdiv and Matera every success in the coming year.”

ECF Princess Margriet Awards for Culture

The annual ECF Princess Margriet Awards for Culture honours inspiring examples of people and organisations who, with courage and creative power, imagine new paths for Europe.

The 2019 Award theme is Democracy Needs Imagination. It is "everyday" democracy that puts the active participation of all people in politics and community life, online and offline. This aspect of democracy is under great threat. This year's award will therefore highlight inspiring people and initiatives who bridge the gaps and consider democracy a shared responsibility for all of us rather than a system owned by a few.

The jury will convene in early 2019 and the two laureates will be announced on 9 May 2019, Europe Day. The Award will be presented on 2 October 2019 in Amsterdam and includes a sum of € 25,000 per laureate.

Parallel to the festive award ceremony the European Cultural Challenge will take place: A two-day advocacy retreat that brings together laureates, grantees, partners, researchers, foundations, media-makers and policy-makers to work on concrete cases: from exploring cultural solutions to imagining campaigns and developing concrete advocacy proposals.

The award was initiated in 2008 in honour of the foundation’s former President, HRH Princess Margriet of the Netherlands, who has shown enormous dedication to the important role of culture in invigorating democracy in Europe. The Award was established in partnership with the Dutch Ministry of Education, Culture and Science and the Dutch Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

EU Funds mobility for individual artists – pilot project, i-Portunes, to be launched in April

For the first time ever, the European Commission is planning a mobility scheme that will help individual artists and culture professionals take advantage of short-term and flexible cross-border opportunities to move between European countries, develop audiences and collaborations, find new inspiration, and fully benefit from – and contribute to – Europe’s diverse cultural ecosystems.

How should such a scheme work, in practice? How much support should be given? How should recipients be chosen? How can the scheme be flexible and reactive – yet fair and transparent? These are some of the questions that i-Portunes aims to answer by testing a small-scale mobility scheme with 500 persons. The results of this pilot project will be key in shaping a new action in the Creative Europe programme, 2021-2027.

Between April and September 2019, three calls will be issued to fund the mobility of individual artists and culture professionals of all ages, nationalities, educational qualifications, and levels of experience from countries participating in the Creative Europe programme. In order to achieve a critical mass, this pilot project will focus on two sectors: the Performing Arts and the Visual Arts.

i-Portunes is implemented on behalf of the European Commission by theGoethe-Institut, in consortium with the Institut français, Izolyatsia and the Nida Art Colony of Vilnius Academy of Arts.

WHERE WILL YOU GET THE LATEST UPDATES HAPPENING IN THE FIELD OF CULTURAL MANAGEMENT AND POLICY?

ENCATC News is a trusted source for what is happening in the wide field of cultural management and policy. Since its creation, ENCATC has dedicated itself to keeping its members abreast of the latest developments in the field, as well as highlighting a plethora of opportunities for them to deepen their knowledge and advance the visibility of their institutions as well as their careers. Furthermore, in each issue our readers can learn from peers in the ENCATC in Contact interview series, see what other members and cultural organisations are contributing to the field, and consult recently published books, studies, and reports.

ENCATC News is an electronic newsletter produced for ENCATC members by the ENCATC Secretariat in Brussels. A shorter Digest version is made available to non members.

ENCATC IS THE LEADING EUROPEAN NETWORK ON CULTURAL MANAGEMENT AND POLICY.

It is an independent membership organisation gathering over 100 higher education institutions and cultural organisations in over 40 countries. ENCATC was founded in 1992 to represent, advocate and promote cultural management and cultural policy education, professionalize the cultural sector to make it sustainable, and to create a platform of discussion and exchange at the European and international level.

ENCATC holds the status of an NGO in official partnership with UNESCO, of observer to the Steering Committee for Culture of the Council of Europe, and is co-funded by the Creative Europe programme of the European Union.
