CALL FOR CONTRIBUTIONS IS NOW OPEN!
EXTENDED Deadline: February 16, 2020

The topic of Sustainable Development has been in the focus of educational events for some time now, yet with insufficiency in undertaking concrete systemic actions by the institutions. Music education for sustainable development should aim at helping people to develop attitudes, skills and knowledge to make informed decisions that help them to deal with the concerns of ecology, health and mental well-being, poverty, equality, human rights, education for all, security and interculturality, and to act upon these decisions (UNESCO 2010).

We are currently facing a critical moment for the universities to come up with an adequate response to the climate and societal crisis and to evaluate themselves as change agents in society.

The Association of Nordic Music Academies, ANMA and Nordplusmusic aim to bring together researchers, academics, students, educators, activists and practitioners involved in artistic, environmental and societal activities to explore the critical issues of sustainable development of higher education.

Applicants are invited to submit proposals for papers or presentations. In particular, we are welcoming creative formats (workshops, performances, artistic interventions) which would enrich the dialogue and enhance the competences of the participants. Proposals from any relevant discipline will be considered, providing original academic or practical contribution to the topic of sustainable development in higher education.

Please submit your proposal HERE by February 16th, 2020
For attending the conference without a presentation please register HERE
