Megatrends like urbanization, electrification, climate change and safe, sustainable food supply for a growing population will impact our customers and our business in the years ahead. The 2018 Danfoss symposium will look at these trends as well as the regulations, codes and standards that present opportunities and barriers for reaching new levels of efficiency in a climate-stressed world.

During the program we will look at existing technologies that are available today – but not widely deployed - to reach energy and climate goals. This be-ahead-of-the-curve event will also look forward to the paradigm shift in food delivery: what does online shopping mean for the future of food retail and the equipment and services that support it?

More information will be available in the coming weeks, but for now, please save the date and plan to join us for this event.

Space is limited. Please reserve your seat today.

Note – there is no cost to attend the symposium, but attendees are responsible for their own travel and accommodations.
