African American Policy Forum and the Center for Intersectionality and Social Policy Studies
Research Fellow
Position Description

The African American Policy Forum (AAPF) and the Center for Intersectionality and Social Policy Studies (CISPS) are seeking a full-time Research Fellow to lead in the completion of reports in the vein of Say Her Name: Resisting Police Brutality Against Black Women and Black Girls Matter: Pushed Out, Overpoliced and Underprotected.

The Research Fellow will oversee the data collection, drafting, and delegation necessary to produce intellectually rigorous and argumentatively taut summations of intersectional justice issues. The role calls for a highly knowledgeable, organized, and self-motivated team player with experience tabulating and interpreting data in a social justice context. Familiarity with critical race theory, intersectionality, and human rights issues is a considerable plus. The ideal candidate will be embedded in the Columbia Law School community, and hold strong relationships with students, faculty and alumni as well as a wealth of knowledge about the gender and race justice organizations on campus.

To apply, submit a CV and a letter of interest to emmett.omalley@aapf.org.
