DEPORTATION RESEARCH CLINIC PRESENTS:
THIS IS WHAT DEPORTATION LOOKS LIKE

TUESDAY MARCH 6
5:00 - 6:00 PM
KRESGE HALL ROOM 2435

Join the Buffett Institute for Global Studies Deportation Research Clinic to learn about the alarming state of deportation in the United States and discover opportunities to produce research to thwart government misconduct and injustice.

Political Science professor and founding Director Jacqueline Stevens and the Clinic’s team of undergraduate and graduate research assistants will discuss their recent efforts to expose abusive labor conditions in immigration detention centers, assist US citizens facing unlawful deportation orders, and document systemic government misconduct in immigration law and policy. Scholarship reported in New York Times, the New Yorker, and CNN.

The Clinic will also debut its new undergraduate fellows opportunities in honor of Northwestern’s first African-American student body president and longtime civil rights lawyer and activist, Eva Jefferson Paterson. Come find out about new opportunities to join the Clinic’s work.
