Human rights activists confirmed that Bahraini authorities attacked prisoners and beat them with batons at Jaw Prison on 1 February.

The sources said that security forces raided buildings 3, 4, and 6 after putting them under siege. Security forces beat prisoners with batons after firing tear gas inside the buildings.

According to the information received, prisoners staged sit-ins protesting the poor prison conditions, and the continued retaliation against and assault of prisoners, including the deprivation of medical care and the utilization of torture.

Activists disseminated a video reportedly from inside the prison showing prisoners’ sufferings.

The human rights activist Naji Fateel announced the continuous deterioration of his health condition and the ongoing use of torture, in addition to authorities never responding to the requests of political prisoners and prisoners of conscience.
